

Anne Frank – review by a Turkish parent

The book is based on a true story. It tells us the sad story of Anne Frank and her family.

They had to live in an annex with other Jewish neighbours for two years.

We learn this situation from Anne's diary.

At that time lots of Jewish people, who had to hide, were sent to the Nazi camps.

They had to work under different circumstances.

Many people died.

One of them was Anne's.

Only her brother was still alive after the war. He wanted everybody to know how difficult and horrible it was to live indoors in terrible conditions without seeing the sky. So he decided to publish Anne's book.

Now more than 2.5 million copies of Anne's book have been sold and the house where they were hiding in has become a museum.

Anne was a little girl. She had dreams and hopes. She would grow up and fall in love but they took her dreams away, her life.

Unfortunately, the world showed them a sad face.
